Both kids who are bullied and who bully others may have serious lasting problems

How do we respect the Opinions of Others?

You should respect other opinions so here's a good way to handle a situation when your opinion is different from the other person.

1. Avoid interrupting.

Give the person a fair opportunity to say what they want to say. In the long run they will feel more positive toward you because you have shown respect and recognition.

2. Acknowledge that you yourself may indeed be wrong; admit that you could be in correct, and then ask the other person to "Examine the Facts"

By approaching the other person this way, they are immediately disarmed and open to the possibility that there might be flaws in their statement.

Avoid confrontation by simply offering them a different view of things.

3. Offer them another perspective.

Remember, you're not arguing with them; you're simply offering your perspective based on your experience.
